NEWSPAPER & MAGAZINE ARTICLES:

Following are some of my published writings that fall within the broad paradigm of Public Health. I have focussed specifically on issues of the marginalised communities, particularly on violence perpetrated against them in forms of caste, class or gender discrimination. By-lines can be accessed online at: <http://tosearchistofind.blogspot.com/search/label/Bylines>.

Feb. 2012	Till love do us apart: This is a feature on khap /caste panchayats that oppress young women and men who oppose status quo in society.
April 2011	Glamour Undone: It is an article about the 'business' of beauty, how selling of beauty products becomes the ultimate motive of business houses, despite the probable physical and psychological harm.
Jan. 2011	Ask the Women: This is a feature about women using depo-provera — an injectable contraceptive — and suffering health consequences.
Oct. 2010	SOS call: Concerns itself with crisis faced by anganwadis , how that negatively impacts health of women and children in India.
Sept. 2010	Nothing 'natural' about it is concerned with violence against women.
Aug 2010	They hate love: It is a feature opposing khap panchayats and their unconstitutional 'justice'.
July 2010	Good Earth: This is a write-up about water politics when water mismanagement, not scarcity, is the real problem faced by the country.
June 2010	Hunger Kills is a feature about glaring malnutrition and morbidity/mortality levels while most state governments deny its existence on paper.
May 2010	The prison of Nirvana: This article explores spiritual methods like Vipassana meditation in Tihar jail as a means for prison reforms.
April 2010	To B(t) or not to B(t) is a feature about the onslaught of multinational agribusinesses like Monsanto on Indian markets, including exclusive interviews with Monsanto representatives in India.
Jan. 2010	Wrote an article about the very problematic public distribution system for India Together ; can be viewed online at http://indiatgether.org/2010/jan/pov-pds.htm .
